The Four Seasons

There are four seasons in a year: spring, summer, autumn, and winter. Each season is special in its own way, and they bring different weather and activities.

In spring, flowers start to bloom, and trees grow new green leaves. The weather becomes warmer, and we can see butterflies and baby animals. Spring is a time of renewal and growth. Many people enjoy planting gardens and watching them grow. Kids love to play outside in the fresh air, flying kites or having picnics.

Summer comes next. This season is hot and sunny. People go to the beach to swim, build sandcastles, and relax in the sun. We often eat ice cream to cool down. Summer is also a time for vacations and adventures. Families travel, go camping, or visit amusement parks. The long days give us plenty of time to have fun outdoors.

Autumn, or fall, arrives after summer. The leaves on trees change color to beautiful shades of red, orange, and yellow. This is the time for harvest, when fruits and vegetables are picked. We see pumpkins everywhere, especially for Halloween. Many people celebrate Thanksgiving in autumn, gathering with family and friends to share a big meal.

Finally, winter comes. This season can be very cold, and in some places, it snows. Kids love to make snowmen, have snowball fights, and go sledding. Winter holidays, like Christmas and New Year’s, bring families together to celebrate. People drink hot chocolate to stay warm.

Each season has its own beauty and fun activities. Let’s enjoy all the different seasons throughout the year!
